

Informal Council of European Research Ministers

Two items will be placed on the agenda of the informal Council of European Research Ministers on 15 and 16 July in Brussels: innovation and simplification.

The Research Ministers will first examine the measures to be taken to build more effectively on research and its economic implications, notably those relating to employment, with the aim of achieving more integrated innovation. This matter will also be the subject of a joint session of the Ministers for Research and Industry.

Secondly, the Research Ministers will examine the provisions necessary to simplify access to European research programmes for universities, research bodies and companies.
